DATA PROTECTION/GDPR PRACTITIONER BCS QUALIFICATION (6 days)

What is in this brochure?

A detailed description of 6 days (40 hours) of data protection training (i.e. content, objectives and learner outcomes of each day of the course) that are held in London and Leeds and which lead to the Data Protection Practitioner Qualification of the British Computer Society (BCS). The BCS Practitioner qualification course can also be delivered on-site.

Delegates are assumed to have no previous knowledge of data protection

Course breakdown

The course is made up of all the following subject matter courses:

- Course D1 - Introduction to Data Protection
- Course D2 - Understanding the Data Protection Principles
- Course D3 – Accountability, Security, Transfer and Subject Access
- Course D4 – Other Rights and Exemptions
- Course D5 - Sectoral approach to Data Protection including PECR
- Course D6 - Commissioner's powers, Codes of Practice, interface with other laws (and some limited exam preparation)

Broad objective of the Course

The prime objective is to produce competent data protection officers with rounded knowledge of the subject matter. No previous knowledge of data protection is assumed. The course has four teaching objectives:

- To study the origins and provisions of the Data Protection Act 2018 based on the GDPR and to gain a theoretical and practical understanding of its terms and of the practical consequences.
- To appreciate, understand, design and implement procedures which meet legal obligations which are derived from the Data Protection Act 2018.
- To study the operation of the Data Protection Act 2018 in specific circumstances, its interaction with other legislation and the common law, and also the Privacy & Electronic Communications Regulations (PECR) in the context of e-commerce.
- To cover the BCS data protection syllabus and obtain the Practitioner qualification.

Learner outcomes for delegates

After attending the course, delegates will be able to:

- recognise the qualities associated with the concept of privacy within the framework of the European Convention on Human Rights and understand the reasons for data protection legislation.
- analyse and understand the definitions, principles and obligations towards data subject rights placed on data controllers by the Data Protection Act (and by the e-commerce obligations of PECR).
- apply the major definitions and obligations to everyday data processing activities and implement procedures to meet the legal requirements set out in data protection legislation.
- apply the obligations to a number of practical situations: for example, marketing, data sharing, the Internet use, human resources, data transfers.
- apply their knowledge effectively to obtain the BCS qualification in data protection.

CONTENT OF EACH COURSE

Course D1: Introduction to Data Protection

This part of the course focuses on the definitions, which are the building blocks of data protection, to provide delegates with solid foundations from which to construct their understanding of data protection law. Also covers the history and context of data protection.

Course D2: Understanding the Data Protection Principles

This part of the course provides delegates with a comprehensive understanding of the obligations arising from each data protection principle from a legal and practical standpoint. This course looks at each principle primarily from a legal standpoint; specialist practical application of policies and procedures are found in other courses.

Course D3: Accountability, Security, Transfer and Subject Access

This part of the course addresses the accountability principle, security principle and the transfer options for transfers of personal data outside the European Economic Area. The course will also cover transfers to the UK as a Third Country as the UK leaves the European Union. The afternoon considers the right of subject access.

Course D4: Rights and Exemptions

This part of the course explores the remaining rights of data subjects and procedures which they entail, and the main exemptions from all rights.

Course D5: Sectoral approach to Data Protection

This part of the course covers the application of all data protection obligations in specific sectors, such as marketing, CCTV, HR, data matching, profiling, data sharing etc as well as the processing of confidential personal data, and marketing under the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations (PECR).

Course D6: Commissioner's powers, Codes of Practice, interface with other laws

This course provides an understanding of the law and practice in relation to the Information Commissioner's notification/registration procedures and the full range of enforcement powers available to the Commissioner. Remaining parts of the syllabus and some exam practice. Law Enforcement elements.

After the course, you will be given materials to help you revise before the BCS exam.
